DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-3 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kaneda et al. (USPN 5031821).

Kaneda teaches an ultrasonic bonding method and apparatus comprising a heater plate (502) on which a lead frame is positioned, a holding member (507) with a roughened surface for pressing at least one lead against the support and a bonding tool for applying ultrasonic energy to a wire and lead (figures 56a, 56b and col 48 line 33 – col 49 line 17). The holding member has a surface roughness of up to 20 microns (grain size, col 48 lines 51-53).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kaneda et al. (USPN 5031821) in view of Persson et al. (USPN 4213556).

Kaneda teaches an ultrasonic bonding method and apparatus comprising a heater plate (502) on which a lead frame is positioned, a holding member (507) with a roughened surface for pressing at least one lead against the support and a bonding tool for applying ultrasonic energy to a wire and lead (figures 56a, 56b and col 48 line 33 – col 49 line 17). However, there is no disclosure of a vibration detector.

Persson teaches wire bonding with a sensor for detecting vibration of the wire (col 4 lines 11-31).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to employ a vibration detector to prevent defective bonding.

5. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kaneda et al. (USPN 5031821) in view of Komoriya et al. (USPN 5400503).

Kaneda teaches an ultrasonic bonding method and apparatus comprising a heater plate (502) on which a lead frame is positioned, a holding member (507) with a roughened surface for pressing at least one lead against the support and a bonding tool for applying ultrasonic energy to a wire and lead (figures 56a, 56b and col 48 line 33 – col 49 line 17). However, there is no disclosure of a vibration detector.

Komoriya teaches wire bonding with a sensor for detecting reflected light (col 12 lines 5-49).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to employ a light sensor to prevent defective bonding.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Sakamoto et al. (USPN 6158645, 20 micron roughness), Sherman (USPN 4671446, light sensor), Kawauchi (USPN 5277356) and Ball (USPN 6715659 B2).
